The Inner Architecture of a Spiritual Leader

The extraordinary privilege of leading people

Spiritual leadership is the privilege of participating in what God is building in others.

“Eventually, what is inside the leader finds its way into the leadership.”

When leadership goes wrong

An unstable inner architecture does not stay private. Leadership can cause real harm when it is built without care.

What happens when leaders build poorly?

Jesus Disciples the Leader Inside the Disciple!

Mark 10:35–45

- Worldly model: power moves toward the leader.
- Kingdom model: power moves through the leader for the good of others.

The Foundation Jesus

1 Corinthians 3:5–17

You are a builder.

You are not the foundation.

Load-Bearing Wall #1

Identity

Who am I before I lead?

Mark 1:11

- Identity precedes public ministry!
- You cannot consistently disciple people into freedom if you need them to validate you!

What am I trying to get from this person that I need to receive somewhere healthier—from God, trusted relationships, or a settled understanding of who I am?

Load-Bearing Wall #2

Character

Who am I becoming?

1 Timothy 3/Titus 1

- Your gift may create opportunity. Your character determines what happens to people once you have it.
- What version of me shows up under pressure?
- Leaders still need discipling.

The “after-action” question: What happened to me?

Load-Bearing Wall #3 Relationships

John 13

- Evaluate the relational fruit.
- Redefine healthy discipline.
- Secure authority serves.
- Create an environment where truth can be spoken.

What's it like to be led by me?

Practice: Ask the dangerous question!

Load-Bearing Wall #4

Purpose

What are we actually building together?

Matthew 28:18–20/Ephesians 4:11–14

- A clear mission: Go and make disciples...teach them to obey, everything....
- We all have a role.
- Changing the leadership scorecard.

The goal of a spiritual leader is not indispensability. It is mature disciples who can help make and mature other disciples.
